

PLANTED breaks new ground. It's about plunging in and planting with aplomb. It's about gardening with a bottle of beer in your hand and a nice dress on. No double digging or grafting. The plant is star. Mix rhubarb with marigolds and don't panic about potash.

Andy Sturgeon – gardener, snow-boarder, Hong Kong bridge builder – calls a spade a spade and a papaver a poppy. He dispenses the information you need to know. What does mulching mean and what vegetables can you grow on your window sill?

He encourages you to get going and be excited by the potential of your plot, be it a window box or wilderness. Don't be alarmed by what you don't know yet, but get stuck in and glory in your garden.

planted

Andy Sturgeon

Hodder & Stoughton

planted

Andy Sturgeon

Photography
Lorry Eason
Michael Wildsmith

